BOCCACCIO, John, one of the most eminent Italian Poets and Scholars, and one of the Revivers of Literature in Europe, was born in 1313; died at Certaldo, 1375. Several of his works went through numerous editions before the year 1500, and are now very scarce, and much sought after by Collectors. The earliest and best Foreign Editions are,—IL DECAMERONE. Il Decamerone, the work on which his fame is permanently estac blished was circulated in MS. for about a century, and liberties of every kind, were taken at every transcription. At length it was printed, for the first time, in 1470, and run through various editions, to the end of the 15th century. By some, it is contended, that the edition of 1471, by Valdalfer, is not only the first with a date, but that, in fact, there was no previous edition. A copy of this edition, 1471, was sold from the Duke of Roxburgh's Library to the Marquiss of Blandford, for the immense sum of two thousand two hundred and sixty pounds. In the Catalogue of this Library, it is stated, that no other perfect copy is yet known to exist, after all the fruitless researches of more than three hundred years.—Third edition, Mand tuæ, 1472, fol. Salviati thinks this the best of all the early editions. Reprinted under the title, Vita et Decamerone, overo Cento Novelle. Ven. 1492.—Another edition. Ven. 1510, fol. Con la Dichiaratione di i luoghi difficili di Francesco Sansovino. Vinetia, per Gabriel Giolito. 1545, 8vo.—Il Corbaccio, o sia Laberinto d'Amore. This work is considered rather too licentious; but, nevertheless, it has been p much sought after by the curious, and has passed through numerous editions. Florence, 1487, 4to. Venice, 1516, 24mo. &c. with a Preface and Notes, by Corbinelli. Paris, 1569, 8vo. Translated into French, by Belleforest. Paris, 1571, 1573. There is another French Translation, but it is so changed from the original, that it appears almost a new book; it is entit. Songe de Boccace, ou de Labyrinthe d'Amour. Paris, 1699. —Origine Vita et Costumi di Dante Alighieri. Rome, 1544, 8vo. Florence, 1576, 8vo.—Commento sopra la Commedia di Dante Alighieri. This work is valuable, as it explains several of the most difficult passages in Dante, and it forms the two last volumes of the edition of Boccaccio's q Works, in Prose, published at Naples, 1724, 5 vols. 8vo.—Las Cient Novellas. Valladolid, 1550.—Aureus Libellus, de duobus amantibus, ex Boccaccio. Const. 1489, 4to.—De montibus sylvis, fontibus, lacubus, fluminibus, stagnis, seu paludibus, &c. This work has been often printed along with several of his other works; but the editio princeps, by itself, is Venice, 1473, fol. Printed by Vindelin de Spira. Reprinted, Basil. 1532, and translated into Italian. Fir. 1598, 8vo.—There is one Work which is usually attributed to Boccaccio, but is the performance of one Andreas de Bassis. BOCCAGE, Mary-Anne, Le Page du, an eminent literary lady of France, and Member of the Academies of Rome, Bologna, Padua, Lyons, and Rouen, was born at Rouen, 1710; died 1802.—She studied the English language, that she might be enabled to transfuse the beauties of Pope's Temple of Fame into French; but she concealed her performance for many years. Having acquired an uncommon relish for Milton's Paradise Lost, she endeavoured to translate a part of it into French, and s was highly complimented by Voltaire on her success, and she imitated also, with much more success, and more ease, Gesner's Death of Abel.—Her fame rests principally on an Epic Poem, entitled, the Columbiad; or Discovery of America, in ten cantos, which procured her the highest reputation at that time from the critics of her own country.—In 1750, she set out upon her travels through England, Holland, and Italy, and published the result of them on her return.—Translation of her Letters concerning England, Holland, and Italy. Lond. 1770, 2 vols. 12mo. 5s.—Her Works were published in 1763, 3 vols. 8vo.

Neither published long enough before his death to have excited much general odium. These two parts were afterwards often reprinted in one volume. A third part was published by Jerome Briani of Modena, at Venice, 1650, 8vo. Amst. 1669, 2 vols. 12mo. And, the whole was translated by H. Cary, Earl of Monmouth. Lond. 1699, and published in Eng. under the inspection of Hughes, the Poet, 1705, fol.—Pietra del Paragone Politico Cosmopoli. Amst. 1615, 4to. Cosm. 1640, 16mo. 1664, 24mo. con una nuova Aggiunta. Cosm. 1667, 12mo. 1671, 12mo. 1675, 8vo. and often reprint- u ed in various sizes; that of Cosmop. 1640, 24mo. Amst. 1653, 24mo. is reckoned the best. It has been translated into Latin, French, and English, under the title, The New-Found Politick, disclosing the Intrigues of State. Lond. 1626, 4to.—Commentarii sopra Cornelio Tacito. Genev. 1669, 4to. Cosmopoli, Amst. 1677, 4to. and afterwards in a Collection, published under the title, La Bilancia Politica di tutte le Opere di Trajano Boccalini, &c. with Notes and Observations by the Chevalier Louis du May, at Castellana. 1678, 3 vols. 4to. This work has now become of rare occurrence. The Commentator of this work has taken some extraordinary liberties with the text.

BONFADIO, James, an elegant Italian Scholar of the 16th century, was born in the Brescian territory; died 1560.—The first five books of his History of Genoa were printed at Padua, under the title of, I. Bonfadio Annales Genuensium, ab anno 1528, ubi desinit Folieta, ad annum 1550.
h Papiæ, 1684, 4to. This is an extremely rare book. This work proved the Author's ruin; for not flattering some of the chief families of the state, as they expected, they basely conspired against him, accused him of an unnatural crime, for which he was tried, condemned, and shortly after decapitated. 1586, 4to. It was published in Italian, 1597.—He also published an Italian and very elegant translation of Cicero's Oration for Milo, an edition of which was published with his Letters and Miscellaneous Works: Lettere Famigliari, &c. at Bologna. 1744, 8vo.

BRUNNE, Robert de, or Robert Mannyng, the first English Poet who occurs in the 14th century, was born probably before 1270, as he was received into the order of Black Canons at Brunne, about 1288. Malton appears to have been his birth place; but what Malton, is doubtful.—His most important work is, A Metrical Chronicle of England, in two parts, the former of which (from Æneas to the death of Cadwallader) is translated from Wace's Brut d'Angleterre, and the latter, (from Cadwallader to the end of the reign of Edward I.) from a French Chronicle, written by Peter de Langtoft, an Augustine Canon, of Bridlington, in Yorkshire.—Hearne has edited Robert de Brunne, but has suppressed the whole of his Translation from Wace, excepting the Prologue and a few Extracts: Mr. Ellis has given some Specimens of De Brunne's work. Specimens, vol. i. p. 112.

This work has been several times reprinted.— b Reprinted by Duncan, Edin. 1806, 2 vols. 8vo.——FOR. EDIT.—Editio princeps. Printed by Sweynheym and Pannartz. Rome, 1469, fol. To this edition is affixed the Epistle of Andrea, afterwards Bishop of Aleria; a piece full of erudition. This work has become extremely rare; and more so, from the impression consisting of only 275 copies.—The editio secunda is printed by Jenson. Ven. 1471, fol. This edition is equally as rare as the preceding; and is much admired, both for the excellency of the paper, and beauty of the print.—The third edition, or second one as printed by Sweynheym and Pannartz. Rome, 1472, fol. It differs from the edit. princeps, in having Andreas subjoined to the end c of the volume, and being wholly printed with types, and no spaces left for illuminated letters.—Comm. 1473, fol. Without a printer's name; but supposed to be printed by Fyner. It is a very curious and uncommon impression. It is printed in a disagreeable Gothic character, with numerous contractions. In this edition, is the famous supposed Tract of Julius Celsus de Vita et Rebus Julii Cæsaris; which afterwards gave rise to a controversy, and, on account of its scarcity, it has since been printed by Grævius, in his edit. in 1697-1713, and the whole question is there minutely discussed by him.—Rome, 1476, fol. By some, the existence of this edition is doubted.—Mediol. Zarotus. 1477, fol.—Mediol. Philip d de Lavan. 1478, fol.—Mazolinus, Tarvisii. 1480, fol. To this is annexed, a Geographical Dictionary This edition has been handsomely printed, as the ink still retains its freshness and brilliancy.—Comm. Ven. 1482, fol. To this is subjoined, A Geographical Dictionary, describing the various nations, countries, towns, &c. mentioned in these Comm. It was undertaken and finished at the expense of Octavianus Scotus.—Comm. cum Epistola Bononii, et Indice Marliani. Venet. 1490, fol.—Comm. à Philippo de Pinciis. Mantua, 1494.—à Hieronymo Bononio. This is an excellent edition, it is enriched with useful Notes, six j Geographical Tables, and a valuable Index. This work has gone through numerous editions.—Leipsic, 1713, 1717, 1722, 1726, 1731, 1736, 1746, 1755, 1756, and 1757.—Cum Notis Variorum et D. Vossii. Amst. 1713, 2 vols. 8vo. This is usually esteemed the editio optima.—Ab Hermolao Albritio, sumptibus Societatis, Lat. et Ital. cum figuris. Ven. 1737, 4to. This is esteemed a good edition, with respect to the translation and plates; but it is deficient in Notes, which were originally intended to form a 2d volume.—Comm. Oudendorpii. Lugd. Bat. 1737, 2 vols. 4to. This is an excellent edition. In it is comprehended the labours of Davis, Clarke, and Vossius, and Oudendorp, has often restored the true ancient reading k of this Author, from comparing numerous old MSS. and editions, successively. Afterwards the Text without the Notes was reprinted at Leyden, 1740, 8vo. Morus reprinted this, with numerous useful critical observations from Ritterus' History of the Gauls, and Guischardus De Re Militari Veterum. Leipsic, 1780, 8vo.—Paris, Barbou. 1755, 2 vols. 12mo.—à Christ. Cellario, cum figuris. Lips. 1767, 8vo.—Lugd. Bat. 1773, 12mo.—à N. Moro. Lips. 1780, 8vo.—Manh. 1781, 2 vols. 12mo.—Comm. Bipont. 1782, 2 vols. 8vo. The text of this is formed on the best editions, and it is very correct, neat, and useful; and comprehends a Notitia Literaria, improved from Fabricius and Ernestus.—Opera l curav. Huttenus. Tubing. 1797, 8vo. This is a plain, useful, and accurate edition.—à J. C. F. Wetzel. Warschau, 1797.—Oberlini. Lipsiæ, 1805, 8vo. This is an elaborate and excellent edition, formed upon those of Oudendorp, Cellarius, and Morus; with additional Observations, and the whole carefully revised by Oberlin.—This celebrated work has been translated into almost every European language; but the principal ones are those in Italian, per Agostino Ortica. CARACCIO, Anthony, Baron of Corano, was a native of Nardo, in the Kingdom of Naples, and in the 17th century acquired much fame by his Italian Poems.—Among his Tragedies, that of Il'Corradino is distinguished above the rest. Printed at Rome, in 1694, 4to.—He employed himself in a Work of far greater importance, his Imperio Vindicato, an Epic g Poem, in forty cantos, printed at Rome, in 1690, 4to. The Italians place it immediately after Ariosto and Tasso; but persons of taste, while they admire the facility and abundance of the Author, rank his Poem far beneath the Orlando Furioso and the Gierusalemme Liberatu. The Author died at Rome in 1702.

CARACCIOLI, Lewis Anthony Marquis, was a native of Paris, born in 1723; died 1803. His Works, which are rather numerous than valuable, are of the moral or historical kind.—Caractére de l'Amitié.—Conversation avec Soi-même.—Jouissance de Soi-même.—Le Veritable Mentor, &c.—The Lives of Cardinal de Berulle Benedict XIV. Cle- r ment XIV. Madame de Maintenon, &c. These are each comprized in a duodecimo volume, a quantity and form for which he appears to have had a predilection. Above twenty other works are enumerated in the Dict. Hist. of which the only one worthy of notice is Ganganelli's Letters, which were translated into English some years ago, and had considerable success in raising the opinions of the Public in favour of that Pontiff, but it is now generally the opinion that they were the composition of Caraccioli.—His Life of Ganganelli, which was translated into s English, in 1770, 8vo. 5s. is esteemed more authentic.—There is another Caraccioli in this country, who called himself Charles Caraccioli, Gent. and published a confused jumble, under the title of, A Life of Lord Clive.

CARACCIOLI, or Caracciolo, Robert, often called Robertus de Licio, from Lezé or Leéce, where he was born, in 1425, one of the most celebrated preachers of his time; died 1495.—Of his Sermons, eight volumes have been printed.—De Quadragesima le perutilissimum de pœnitentia. It is taken from the Portuguese Memoirs of M. Manouchi, a Venetian.—Histoire du Fanatisme des Religions Protestantes. Paris, 12mo. Containing only the History of the Anabaptists; but he reprinted it in 1733, 2 vols. 12mo. with the History of Davidism, and added, the same year, in a third volume, the History of the Quakers. —A Translation of Virgil into prose, which was published. Paris, 1716, 6 vols. 12mo. and reprinted in 1729, 4 vols.—That on which his fame chiefly rests, is his Roman History to which his friend Rouillé contributed s the Notes. This valuable Work was completed in 25 vols. Paris, 1726, 4to. Translated into English, under the title of, the Roman History, with Notes, Historical, Geographical, and Critical. Illustrated with copper-plates, maps, and a great number of authentic medals, done into English from the original French, by R. Bundy. Lond. 1728, 6 vols. fol. Rouillé, who undertook to continue the history after the death of his colleague, published only one volume in 1739, 4to.

CATTY, Lewis.—Elements of French Grammar.

CATUELAN, Comte de. The following Work is ascribed to him,—L'Italie et L'Angleterre, &c. or, Italy and England, each considered in one of her Children. 1804, 8vo. 2s.

CATULLUS, Caius Valerius, a Roman Poet, born at Verona, A. C. 86, was descended from a good family, and his father was familiarly ac-w quainted with Julius Cæsar; he died in the 46th year of his age, B. C. 40, and in the height of his reputation.——CARMINA.—Brit. Edit. Opera, Phaselus et ad eam quotquot extant parœdiæ. Eboraci, 1579, 8vo. Reprinted at Lugd. 1593, 12mo. This is a curious work.—Carmina cum Notis Is. Vossii. Lond. 1684, 4to. This is a good and rare edition. Reprinted with the infamous Tract of Adrian Beverland, de Prostibulis Veterum. This Beverland was Amanuensis to Vossius, and first published that writer's celebrated Commentaries, in these editions, after they had lain hid for upwards of thirty years.—Carmina Lyrica Catulli, Lat. et Eng. Lond. 1796, 2 vols. 8vo. The translation is placed opposite the text. This is not x a very good edition either in the editor's or printer's part; but it contains the whole of Catullus without reserve.—Eng. Trans. Acme and Septimius. Translated into English, by Abraham Cowley, in his poems.—The Vigil of Venus, ascribed by some to Catullus; by Thomas Parnell. See his Poems.—An Ode, from the Latin of Catullus; The Paradoxical Lover, from the same; to Lesbia. In the Gentleman's Magazine for August and November 1733, and for January 1780.—The Coma Berenices; by Dr. Tytler. Lond. 1793, 4to.—Catullus; in English verse, with the Latin text revised, and classical Notes. Prefixed are engravings of Catullus, and his friend Cornelius Nepos. Lond. 1795, 2 vols. 8vo. 12s. This is a complete

y and good translation. There is a life of Catullus prefixed, and an index of persons, places, and subjects subjoined.—Foreign Edit. Opera, editio princeps. Parm. Corallus, 1473, fol. Subjoined are the Silvæ of Statius. This work was revised by Guarinus of Verona, and reprinted at Venice by J. Colonia, and J. Manthen de Ghersem. 1475, fol. The editio princeps is of extraordinary rarity and value.—Opera, cum Comment. Ven. Andr. Catharensis, about 1476, fol.—Opera. Without place, date, or printer's name, fol. An edition of the 15th century, and well printed.—Opera à Calphurnio. Regis Lepidi accuratissimè impressa, auctoribus Prospero Odoardo et Alberto Mazali Regiensibus, anno salutis 1481. 10. Kal. Octob. z fol. This is a very rare edition, and was reprinted the same year at Vicenza, by Jo. Renensis and Dion. Berthocus, with the Silvæ of Statius added.—Opera ab Ant. Parthenio Lusicio. Venet. 1487, fol.—Opera. Venet. per Andream de Pultasichis Catarensem. Without date, but supposed to have been printed about 1488, fol.—Carmen Argonauticum Pelei et Thetidis. Lips. 1493, 4to.—Opera. Venet. 1493, fol.—Opera. Venet. Tacuinus, 1496, fol.—Opera cum Comment. Bernardini Realini. Bonon. 1551, 4to. —Opera, ab Achille Statio. Venet. Paul. Manut. 1554, 1564, 1566, 4to. —Opera cum Cod. MSS. collat. Lugd. 1558, 8vo.—Opera, Epithalamium, cum Græca Metaphrasi, Q. Septimii Florentis Christiani. Paris, a 1587, 4to. A very scarce edition.—Vita et Opera. Lugd. 1603.—Casta Carmina ab Raphaele Eglino Iconis Tigurino edita, cum ejusdem Vindiciis Viris Catullianæ adversus Josephum Scaligerum. acc. Gasparis Scioppii epitheta, Synonyma poetica ut et notæ ejusdem in Cl. Verderii Censionem, è Typograph. Wolfz. Richteri. 1606, 8vo. 5 plates. An uncommonly scarce book.—Poemata quædam selecta, Græcè reddita, per Jos. Scaligerum. 1615, 8vo.—Opera cum Græca Metaphrasi Josephi Scaligeri, ab And. Senftlabio. Lips. 1642, 8vo.—Opera ex Recensione Grævii, cum notis variorum. Traj. ad Rh. 1680, 8vo.—Opera à Joan. Ant. Vulpii. Patav. 1737, 4to. This is the best or among the best editions of this Author yet pub-b lished. The text is beautifully printed, and the notes of Vulpius have been very much admired as illustrative of the Poems.—Opera, Corradini. Venet. 1738, 4to. In this edition Corradinus pretended to exhibit a pure and accurate text from a very ancient Roman MS. which he had discovered. This was immediately detected as an imposture.—Catullus Restitutus, seu Opera. Paris, 1743, 12mo. This edition had previously been reprinted at Venice, 1739, fol.—Opera. Nurembergæ, 1778, 8vo.—Catulli Epithalamium, à Doring. Naumb. 1778, 8vo.—Catulli Carmen Pelei et Thetidis, edit. Senz. Altenb. 1787, 8vo.—Elegia ad Mantium Lection. Const. L. Santenius maj. Lugd. 1788, 4to.—Opera, varietate lectionis et perpetua c adnotatione illustrata à Doring. maj. Lips. 1788 and 1792, 2 tom. 8vo. The notes of this edition, with the text, are arranged in a very sensible and critical way, and forms an excellent companion to the Tibullus of Keyne, and the Propertius of Barthius.—Opera, Latin. et German. Ramler. Lips. 1793, 8vo.—Carmina Lyrica Catulli, Horatii, et aliorum veterum Poetarum. Edidit Nasser. Kaven. A. 1794, 8vo.—Carmina minora, curavit T. S. Forbiger. Lips. 1794, 8vo.——CARM. CAT. CUM. TIB. &c.—Brit. Edit. Catulli, Tibulli et Propertii Opera. Ultrajecti, 1691, 4to. This is a splendid and accurate edition.—Et ad optimorum exemplarium fidem recensita, cum variis lectionibus, in usum ducis Glocestriensis. Cand tab. 1702, 4to.—Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii Opera à Mich. Maittaire. Lond. 1715, 12mo.—Cat. Tib. Prop. Opera. Birmingham, Baskerville, 1772, 4to. and 1772, 8vo.—Cat. Tib. Prop. Opera, ab Edvardo Harwood. Lond. 1773, 1774, 12mo. Very correct and respectable editions.—Eng. Trans. Translations out of Catullus, Tibullus, and Propertius; by Francis Willis, in the Miscellany, Poems and Translations by different hands at Oxford. Lond. 1685, 8vo.—For. Edit. Editio Princeps: Catullus, Tibullus, Propertius, cum Statii Sylvis. Without printer's name, or place, 1472, fol. This work has been ascribed by some to Vindelin Spira, and by others to Gallus. It is an exceeding rare book, and only four copies e are known, one on vellum.—Catullus, Tibullus, Propertius, cum Statii Sylvis. Printed by John de Colonia, and John Manthen de Ghersen. Venet. 1475, fol. This is the editio secunda, a very scarce book, and an exact reprint of the editio princeps.—Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii, per J. Renensem, et Bertochum. Vincent. 1481, fol. This is far from being so scarce as the preceding editions. It is usually accompanied with the fourth book of Statius' Sylvæ.—Catullus, Tibullus, and Propertius. Printed by Odoardus and Mazali. Reggio, 1481, fol. This is a handsome volume, printed in a neat Roman type, and presenting us with a specimen of the press of two printers whose productions are not of very common occurrence.—Catulli, f Tibulli, et Propertii, Opera: ab Anthon. Parthenio, Lacisio. Brixiæ, Boninus de Boninis. 1485, fol. Some copies of this same edition bear the date of 1486.—Catullus, Tibullus, Propertius, cum Commento Parthenii. Printed by Andreas de Pultasciopis. Venice, 1488, fol. From the Colophon it would appear that the printer was occupied a twelvemonth in the execution of the volume. The type is neat, and the work is well printed.—Catullus, Tibullus, Propertius, cum Commento à Philippo Beroaldo. Editi, anno salutis MCCCLXXXVII. impressi vero Venetiis a Boneto Locatello Bergomensi. Cui necessaria exhibuit nobilis vir Octavianus Scotus Modoetiensis. Anno ejusdem salutis nonagesimo primo supra millesimum ac quag dringentesimum, Quinto Idus Decembris. Venet. 1491.—Catullus, Tibullus, Propertius. Printed by Simon Bevilaqua. Venice, 1493, fol. This is a reprint of the preceding edition, with rather less bulk of Commentary. —Tib. Cat. et Prop. cum Comm. var. à Hiero Avantio. Ven. 1500, fol. —Catullus, Tibullus, et Propertius. Venet. Aldi, 1502, 1511, 1515, et sine anno 4to. The edition of 1502 was composed by Aldus and Avantius.

The edition in 1515 is the most correct, and forms the basis of many subsequent editions in the 16th century.—Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii Opera Par. Col. 1529, 1543, 8vo. Lugd. 1542, 8vo.—Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii, cum Cornelii Galli Fragmento. Lugd. Gryph. 1548, 1561, 12mo.
h —Catullus, Tibullus, et Propertius, à M. Ant. Mureto. Venet. P. Manut. 1554, 1558, et Ald. 1562, 8vo. Muretus compiled the edition in 1558, which has not been much admired for its accuracy or care. Another is printed with distinct titles, and paged so as to form three different works. —Opera Cat. Tib. et Prop. cum Comm. Lugd. 1559, 8vo.—Vit. et Opera Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii. Antverpiæ, Plant. literis quadratis, 1560, 8vo. This is the only work of this printer which has been esteemed.—Cat. Tib. Prop. Basil. 1569, 8vo.—Cat. Tib. Prop. Lugd. 1573, 16mo.—Catulli, Tibulli, Propertii, Opera, cum Castigat. Jos. Scaligeri. Par. Henr. Steph. 1577, 8vo. This is a good edition, and illustrated with very learned i notes. Ab eodem. Paris, Patisson, 1577, 8vo.—Tibulli, Catulli, et Propertii, cum Comm. Scaligeri et Mureti. Antv. 1582, 8vo.—Cat. Tib. Prop. Lugd. Bat. 1591, 16mo.—Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii Opera, à Jano Dousa. Lugd. Bat. 1592, 12mo. This edition is formed on the basis of the Basil edition of 1569, and in accuracy and emendations far exceeds all preceding editions, and is esteemed one of the most correct of these Poets conjoined.—Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii Opera, cum Castigat. Jos. Scaligeri. Heidelb. 1600, 8vo.—Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii Opera. Lugd. Bat. 1603, 12mo.—Catulli, Tibulli, Propertii Opera, cum Comm. varior. à Frid. Morellio. Paris, Morel. 1604, fol. Some copies of this same edition j have Orry inserted for the printer's name.—Catullus, Tibullus, et Propertius, à Jo. Passeratio. Paris, 1608, fol. This work contains Passeratius' Commentaries, with an accurate Index rerum, verborum, auctorum, et emendationum. The text is taken from Dousa's edition of 1592.—Catullus, Tibullus, Propertius, Jani Gebhardi. Han. 1618, 8vo.—Catullus, Tibullus, et Propertius. Franc. 1621, 8vo.—Catullus, Tibullus, et Propertius. Lugd. Batav. Elzevir, 1651, 12mo.—Catullus, Tibullus, et Propertius, cum Not. var. à Simone Abbes Gabemma. Traj. ad Rhen. 1659, 8vo. With Cornelius Gallus. A very good edition.—Carmina Selecta, cum Notis J. Vorstii. Lips. 1675, 8vo.—Catullus, Tibullus, k et Propertius, cum Not. var. à Joan. Georg. Grævio. Traj. ad Rhenum, 1680, 8vo. This is a valuable edition, well printed, yet some call it an inaccurate and hasty production.—Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii, a Philip. Sylvio, in usum Delphini. Paris, 1685, 4to. Sells at a high price, but for accuracy of little value.—Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii Opera. Ultrajecti, 1691, 4to.—Catullus, Tibullus, et Propertius, à Jo. Antonio Vulpio primis curis illustrata. Mag. Patavii, Josephus Corona, 1710, 8vo. This is considered a useful edition.—Catullus, Tibullus, et Propertius, Brochardi. Paris, 1723, 4to. This work is beautifully printed by Coustelier, but not very accurate.—Catullus, Tibullus, Propertius, a J. A. Vulpio. Pal tav. 1737-1755, 4 vols. 4to. An excellent edition.—Catullus, Tibullus, Propertius. Lugd. Bat. 1743, 3 vols. 12mo. This is the fictitious place which a few copies have, the proper place is, Lutet. Parisior. Coustelier. It is a beautiful edition.—Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii Opera, cum Corn. Galli Fragmentis. Paris, Barbou, 1755, 12mo.—Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii Opera ad fidem optimorum librorum recensiti. Goettingæ, 1762, 12mo.—Catulli, Tibulli, et Propertii Opera, cum Galli Fragment. Biponti, 1794, 8vo.—Catullus, Tibullus, Propertius, Bodoni. Parmæ, 1794, fol. The text of Catullus is carefully selected from five MSS. two of which Antom ny Angelius had possession of, who lived in the 16th century. The text of Tibullus is taken from Heyne's second edition of that poet, and that of Propertius from Burman's edit. curâ Santenii. This is a very superb work.

CATZ, James, pensionary of Holland, keeper of the great seals there, and Stadtholder of the Feifs, was born in Zealand, 1577; died 1660.—His Poems have been printed in all forms, the Hollanders highly valuing them; and the last edition of his works was 1726, in two vols. fol.

CAXTON, William, to whom this country owes the introduction of Printing, was born in Kent about the year 1412; after serving an apprenticeship to one Robert Large, a Mercer, or Merchant of considerable eminence in the city of London, he travelled to the Low Countries, and other parts of the Continent, where he remained a considerable time on the splendid establishment of Margaret, sister of Edward IV. and Duchess of Burgundy, who seems to have afforded him every encouragement to pursue his literary and typographical labours. The exact period of his return to his own country is not ascertained, although it is well known that, q in 1477, he had erected his press in the vicinity of Westminster Abbey. He died in 1491 or 1492. The list of works printed by him is as follows.—Cy Commence le volume intitule le Recueil des Histoires de Troyes. (Emanuel Meteranus), of Antwerp, his fifteene bookes Historiæ Belgicæ, and other collections added; altogether manifesting all martiall actions, meete for euery good subiect to reade for defence of Prince and Countrey. Lond. 1602, 4to. In this work Churchyard gives a curious account of his own military feats, when he served during the civil wars in the Netherlands, by which he appears to have acted a very important part.—Ovid. de Tristibuz. In English. Lond. 1580, 4to. This was only the first three books of Ovid's Tristia, and the work was dedicated to Sir Christopher Hatton.—In his Chalp lenge, printed in 1593, Churchyard gives this account of his different publications: The bookes that I can call to memorie alreadie printed are these that followes: First, in King Edwarde's daies, a book named, Dauie Dicar's Dreame, which one Camell wrote against, whom I openly confuted; Shore's Wife I penned at that season. Another booke in those daies called, The Mirror of Man. In Queene Marie's raigne, a booke called, A New Yeare's Gift to all England; which booke treated of rebellion. And many things in the book of Songs and Sonets, printed then, were of my making. Since that time till this day I wrote all those workes: The Booke of Chips, dedicated to Sir Christopher Hatton, after Lord Chancellor. The booke called q Chance; dedicated to Sir Thomas Bromley, L. Chancellor then. The booke called Charge, to my L. of Surrye. The booke called My Change, in uerse and proes; dedicated to all good mindes. The booke called My Choice; dedicated to the L. Chancellor, Sir Christopher Hatton. The booke of the Siege of Leeth and Edenborough Castell. The booke of Sir William Drurie's Seruice, dedicated to Sir Drue Drury. The booke called The Golden Nut, dedicated to the Qu. Ma. The booke of Receiuing her Highnes into Suffolke and Norfolke. The booke before of her Highness receiuing into Bristow. The booke of the Earthquake, to the good Deane of Paules, (1580). The booke of the troubles of Flanders; to Sir r Francis Walsing. (1578). The booke called The Scourge of Rebells in Ireland, to my Lord Admirall. The booke called A Rebuke to Rebellion, to the goode olde Earle of Bedford. The booke of A Sparke of Freendship; to Sir Walter Rawley. The booke of Sorrows, to D. Wilson, when he was Secretary. The book of, The Winning of Macklin, to my Lorde Norrice. The booke called The Worthines of Wales, to the Qu. Ma. The booke giuen her Maiestie at Bristow, where I made all the whole deuises. The deuises of Warre, and a Play at Awsterley, her Highnes being at Sir Thomas Gresham's. The Commedy before her Maiestie at Norwiche, in the fielde, when she went to dinner to my Lady Gernichgam's.
s The whole Deuises, Pastimes, and Plaies, at Norwich, before her Maiestie. The Deuises and Speeches that men and boyes shewed with in many prograces. The booke of King Henrie's Epitaphe, and other Princes and Lords; to Secretary Wolley. The booke of, My Deer Adue, to M. Iohn Stannop. The booke called A Handfull of Gladsom Verses, to the Qu. M. at Woodstocke. The booke called A Pleasante Conceite; a new yeere's gift to the Queen's Maiestie. This list does not comprehend all the Works of Churchyard, for he afterwards, in the same place, enumerates others, both original pieces and translations, probably in manuscript, which he had given to some noble friends. Which list he closes with the follow-t ing remark: And an infinite number of other Songes and Sonnets, giuen where they cannot be recouered, nor purchase any fauour when they are craued.—In Higgin's Mirrour of Magistrates, there are some things of Churchyard's, particularly his account of the fate of Jane Shore.

Whereunto is joygned, the Oration which Cicero made to Cæsar, giving thanks unto him for pardoning Marcus Marcellus; by Richard Sherrie, Londoner. Lond. 1555, 8vo. The very early foreign editions of this work are both numerous and curious. The following are the most remarkable.—Foreign Editions. The editio princeps. Romæ, 1467, fol. This was reprinted at Rome, 1469, and at Venice, 1469.—Rhetoricorum Libri ad Herennium, et de Inventione. Ven. Nic.
o Jenson, 1470, fol. From the newness of the types, it is supposed to have been among the earliest productions of Jenson's press: it is a very rare and curious work.—Sine anno, fol. typ. Sixti Riessinger, absque loci indicio. The antiquity of this is conjectured to be about 1471 and 1472.—Rhetorica Opera Omnia. Neopoli, Arnoldus de Bruxello, 1472, fol. This one contains the Libri iv. ad Herennium et Libri ii. de Rhetor. Inventione.—Rhetorica Vetus. Romæ, Vend. de Willa, 1474, fol. This one wants the Libri ii. de Inventione, which are in the preceding editions; in rarity, this edition exceeds that by Jenson.—Mediolan. Zarotus, 1474, fol. This work was reprinted at the same place, 1485.—Rhetorica Vetus. Without p place or printer's name. 1475, fol. This is printed in an elegant character.—Opera Omnia Rhetorica, ab Omnibono Leoniceno. Without date or printer's name, 1475, fol. This is printed with the beautiful types of Jenson.—Mediol. Philippus Lavagna. 1477, fol.—Rhetorica Opera Omnia Lib. ad Heren. Paris, 1477, fol.—Rhetorica Papiæ, Jacobus de Sancto Petro. 1477, fol.—Rhetorica. Paris, Ulric Gering. 1478, fol.—Rhetorica. Paris, ad signum foliis viridis. 1478, fol.—Rhetorica. Pachel, et Ulder Schin-q zenzeler. 1479, fol.—Rhetorica, et de Inventione, ex edit. Leoniceni, per Philippum Condum Petri. Venet. 1479. This work is entit. Rhetoricorum veterum. In this year, the same printer published the books, ad Herennium, entit. Rhetoricorum Novorum.—Cum Comment. Victorini per Baptistam de Tortis. Venet. 1481, fol.—Rhetorica. Paris, in vico S. Jacobi. 1482, fol.—Rhetorica Vet. Libri iv. cum Comment. Marii Fabii Victorini, per Joannem de Forlivio et Jacobum Britannicum Brixianum. Venet. 1483. —Rhetorica nova. Without date, place, or printer's name. fol. This work is printed in a neat, but feeble type. In this work is contained, two Epistles, the one by Æneas Sylvius (afterwards Pope Pius II.) to Gre-r gory Heimburgius; the other to Henry, Count de Lupffen.—Rhetorica Nova. Without date, place, or printer's name. The type of this very much resembles that of Vindelin de Spira.—Cum Comment. G. This edit. is printed in the Subiaco Monastery. This edition appears to have been printed with the same types with that of Lactantius, in 1465.—De Oratore, printed by Ulric Han. Rom. 1468, 4to. This is the editio secunda, a very rare and curious work, and among the earliest impressions of Ulric Han's press.—De Oratore, ad a Quint. Fratr. et ad Brut. Rom. in dom. Petri de Maximo, 1469.—De Oratore; Brutus, sive de Claris Oratoribus, printed by Sweynheym and Pannartz. Rome, 1469, 4to. This is the first edition of that part of the work entit. Brutus, sive de Claris Oratoribus. This is rather a scarce impression.—De Oratore. Venet. sine ulla nota, fol. This is a rare and curious edition, and supposed to have been printed in the year 1469.—De Oratore, per Christoph. Valdarfer Ratisponensem. Ven. 1470. This is a very rare edit. It contains only the text of Cicero, without preface or dedication; and is also held in high estimation by some, as exhibiting some of the earliest specimens of Valdarfer's press.—De Oratore. Without date, b place, or printer's name; but probably executed by Vindelin de Spira, 4to. The types resemble those of Spira, in his edition of Cicero's Offices, of 1470.—De Oratore, per Conr. Sweyn. et Arn. Pan. Romæ, 1471, fol. —De Oratore, per Christoph. Valdarfer Ratisponens. Venet. 1471, fol. —Libri 3. Venet. absque ulla nota, 1471, fol. This edition has been disputed as to priority in time with the Venetian edition, and one without date c immediately following.—Orationes, printed by Christopher Valdarfer. Venice, 1471, fol. This is magnificently printed, and is now a very rare and scarce work, but it wants the Orations against Marc. Antony (or the Philippics) and verses, and those in favour of Fonteius and Roscius.—Orationes, without date, place, or printer's name, fol. This is supposed to have been among the first attempts at printing in Italy; the character of the type is square and very unequal, and the lines a little crooked.—Orationes, à Campano. Romæ, Udalr. Gallo; without date, folio. The works printed by Ulric Gallo were previous, or about the year 1471.—Orationes; without date, place, or printer's name, but apparently an edition d by Jenson, at Venice, fol.—Orationes quædam, without date, place, or printer's name, but a very old edition, and published in 4to.—Orationes, printed by Adam de Ambergau. Rome, 1472, fol. This is wholly a reprint of Valdarfer, yet from the scarcity of the work, and the celebrity of its printer, it far exceeds the other in value, and it has been printed with a beautiful type.—Orationes, absque loci ind. Mog. Adam, 1472, fol.—Orationes; without date, place, or printer's name. This impression in antiquity is held to rank not later than 1472. It is a very bad impression, on very bad paper. The types are uncommonly coarse and rude.—Orationes; without date, place, or printer's name, fol. This is supposed to e have been the production of some Venetian press, from between 1472 to 1480.—Orationes. Ven. Joan. de Colon. 1474, fol.—Orationes, cum Commentariis Asconii Padiani, et alior. A well printed book.—Ciceronis Opera, cum Commentariis Mureti, Ursini, Perizonii, Turnebi, Junii, Sigonii, et Ciceronis Vita, à Valamberto, apud Aldum, 1560, 17 vols. 8vo.—Opera, Lambini. Paris, 1566, 4 vols. fol. This is an excellent edition. This first edition is l the most valuable, and now the most rare of all the subsequent editions, viz. at Paris, in 1572-5, 1580, and 1584; at Lyons, in 1577, 1580, and 1588 and at Strasburgh, 1581.—Opera, apud Aldum, Nepotem. Venet. 1578-83, 10 vols. fol.—Opera, Manutiorum. Venet. apud Aldum, 1582-83, 4 vols. 8vo. This is the last work of consequence which issued from the press of the younger Aldus.—Opera, Ursini. Geneva, 1584, 2 vols. fol. This is a valuable edition. The Notes were printed at Antwerp, in 8vo.—Opera, Gothofredi. Lugd. 1588, 2 vols. fol. This work contains the Notes of former Commentators, and especially those of Lambinus.—Opera, Wechelii. Francof. 1590, 10 vols. 8vo. This is an excellent edition, and contains numerous learned Notes and Commentaries. This was reprinted in 1606, and 1609, 8vo. at Hanover: in 1603, in 12mo.—Opera, cum Notis Jani Gulielmi et Jani Gruteri, curante Jacobo Gronovio. Lugd. Bat. 1692, 2 vols. 4to.—Opera, quæ extant omnia, ex sola fere codd. MSS. fide emendata, studio atque industria Jani Gulielmi et Jani Gruteri; adjungitur Frobenii Penu Tullianum decem indicibus, summa cum cura huic editioni adaptatis, comprehensum. Hamb. 1618, 2 vols. fol. A good edition, incorrectly reprinted at London. 1681, 4 vols. fol.—Opera, cum optimis exemplaribus, accuratè collata. Lugd. Bat. Elzevir, 1642-3, 10 vols. 12mo. A most excellent edition, printed on beautiful paper, with neat and elegant types, and it is exceedingly correct. The part of the work containing De Officiis, was twice printed.—Opera. Amst. 1658, 10 vols. small 8vo. A good edition.—Opera, apud Blaeu. 1659, 10 vols. 12mo. A good edition.—Opera, cum Notis Schrevelii. Lugd. Bat. 1661, 4to. A fair and correct edition.—Opera, Gronovii. Amsterd. 1691, 11 vols. 12mo. Reprinted, cum Notis Gruteri et Gronovii. Lugd. Bat. 1692, 2 vols. 4to. This also contains the Scholia of Asconius Pedianus. They are both pretty correct editions.—Opera, Omnia, cum Notis variorum. This set is made up of the best editions of the several parts of Cicero's works; as, Orationes. Amst. 1699. Epist. ad Familiares. Amst. 1693. Epist. ad Atticum. Amst. 1684. De Officiis. Lugd. Bat. 1710. Opera Philosophica, Davisii. Cant. 1730, &c. De Oratore, à Pearce. Camb. 1732. De Arte Oratoria, et de Clavis Oratoribus, à Proust. Oxon. 1716-18. Epistolæ ad Quintum Fratrem et ad Brutum. Amst. 1725. Rhetorica ad Herennium, curante P. Burmanno. Lugd. Bat. 1761. A very complete set, and bound up in 20 vols. 8vo.—Opera, cum Asconio et Scholiaste Veteri, et cum Notis variorum ab Isaaco Verburgio. Amst. 11 vols. 8vo. and Amst. 1724, 4 vols. 4to. The 4to. edition is preferable to the 8vo. The Notes have been most judiciously selected, and it has an excellent Index. It is superior, or, at least, equal to any of the preceding editions in correctness and utility. It is adorned with several well executed plates. It was afterwards reprinted at Venice, 1731, 12 vols. 8vo.—Opera, Ernesti. Lipsiæ, 1737, 8vo. Reprinted, Hal. Sax. 1758, 1774. These are the three best editions of Ernesti. The first edition has the preference in paper and type, the two last have the preference in correctness, and the Clavis Ciceroniana, sive Indices Legum.—Opera Omnia, Olivet. Paris, 1740, 9 vols. 4to. This is a splendid edition.—Opera, cum delectu Comment. edid. Olivetus. Paris, 1742, 9 vols. A very scarce edition. Reprinted very carefully at Geneva, 1745 and 1758. The best of these editions is 1758.—Opera Omnia, cura Oliveti. Amst. 1745, 9 vols. 4to. This and the Paris edition of 1742 vary only in the title page.—Opera, à Joan. Aug. Ernesto. Hall. Sax. 1756-7, 6 vols. 8vo. The paper of this edition is very bad.—Opera, Oliveti. Geneva, 1758, 9 vols. 4to. This edit. is handsomely printed, and the Notes are placed under the Text, in a pretty distinct type. This edit. is very scarce, and has since been reprinted at Padua, in 16 vols. 8vo.—Opera, Lallemand. Paris, printed by Barbou, 1768, 14 vols. 12mo. An edition beautifully printed, and very correct; with critical Notes subjoined to the end of each volume.—Opera, Oliveti. Venet. 1772, 9 vols. 4to.—Opera, cum Notis select. ex editione Oliveti. Patav. 1773, 16 vols. 8vo.—Opera, ex recensione Ernesti, cum ejusdem Notis et Clave Ciceroniana maj. Halæ, 1776-77, 5 vols. 8vo. In this edit. the Clavis is considerably augmented. It is considered the best edition of all the preceding ones of Ernesti.—Opera, cum Notis variorum. Neap. 1777, &c. 8vo. This edition was to have consisted of 16 vols. only 9 of which have appeared.—Opera, cum Notitia literaria, accedunt Indices, studio Societ. Bipontinæ, 1780-91, 13 vols. 8vo. This edition contains the Clavis Ciceroniana of Ernesti, enlarged, with the Life of Cicero, in Latin, from the Greek of Plutarch.—Opera Omnia. Manh. 1784, 20 vols. 12mo.—Opera Omnia, ad optimos libros recens. et Lexicon Ciceronianum addidit C. C. Beck. Lips. 1795, 8vo. vol. 1st. 2d vol. 1800. 3d vol. 1802. If finished this will be a most elaborate edition.——SPURIOUS WORKS.—The Spurious Works which have been attributed to Cicero, are——Consolatio.—Brit. Edit. Liber, quo seipsum de Filiæ Morte Consolatus est. Lond. 1583, 8vo.—Eng. Trans.
